PLEASE FORWARD THIS ANNOUNCEMENT TO ALL APPROPRIATE FACULTY AND RESEARCH ADMINISTRATORS

PURPOSE:
- To support young investigators of outstanding promise in science relevant to the advancement of human health.
- Based on their performance during their education and training, candidates should demonstrate outstanding promise as contributors in science relevant to human health.
- Strong proposals will incorporate particularly creative and pioneering approaches to basic, translational, and applied biomedical research. Candidates whose work is based on biomedical principles but who bring in concepts and theories from more diverse fields are encouraged to apply. Ideas with the potential to produce an unusually high impact are encouraged.
- Selection will be based on a detailed description of the work that the applicant proposes to undertake, evaluations of the candidate’s performance, and notable past accomplishments, including honors, awards, and publications. The National Advisory Committee gives considerable weight to evidence that the candidate is a successful independent investigator and has published significant work.
- This program does not fund clinical trials research.

ELIGIBILITY:
- Have a doctorate in biomedical sciences, medicine or a related field.
- Hold a full-time appointment at the rank of assistant professor as of September 1st, 2021. Appointments such as research assistant professor, adjunct assistant professor, assistant professor research track, visiting professor, or instructor are not eligible.
- Not have been appointed as an assistant professor at any institution prior to June 14, 2017, whether or not such an appointment was on a tenure track. Time spent in clinical internships, residencies, in work toward board certification, or on parental leave does not count as part of this three-year limit. Candidates who took parental leave should contact Pew’s program office to ensure that application reviewers are aware of their circumstances.
- Not have been nominated to apply more than once before.
